Alumni Remember JJC During Holidays

During the vacation period several former students returned to their Alma Mater to see different instructors and visit the student body of which they were once a part. Through Christmas cards we have heard from several. It is particularly gratifying at the holiday season to renew old acquaintances and to learn of their whereabouts.

Muryl Olinger, who attended JJC last year and who is now in the Air Corps, is attending school in California where he is studying Russian.

Lynn Rollins, a 1942 graduate of Junior College, is now an accountant for the Shell Oil Company in Portland, Oregon. He is married and has a little girl, one year old.

Lynn served as first lieutenant in World War II. He was a pilot stationed in Paris, France. Later he graduated from the University of Missouri where he majored in Business and Public Administration.

Marion Barnhart received her Doctor of Science degree from Missouri University last year and is now located at Wayne University College of Medicine, Detroit, Michigan. She teaches physiology and is doing research in cellular physiology.

Jack Patterson, 1950 graduate, is a pre-med student at the University of Arkansas.

Dick Parks is at the Kansas City Dental College.

William Snow is attending Kansas City School of Osteopathy.

Henry Galloway, a student at JJC last year, is now resuming his old position as pilot in the Air Corps. Henry was in the reserves.

Ruthie Sullenger was married to Bud Snyder over the holidays. Ruthie was a music major here.

Mrs. Warten Gives Tips On Charm

Mrs. Henry Warten discussed the importance of charm at the first 1951 meeting of the Joplin Junior College Y.W.C.A. Luncheon Club, Tuesday, January 9. Mrs. Warten, who was introduced by Dixie Farris, used John Robert Powers' statement, "If a woman has charm she doesn't need anything else, but without charm nothing else will do her any good," as the theme of her talk.

According to Mrs. Warten, "Posture is the basis of all charm." Mentioning the habits formed in carrying books, she particularly emphasized the relationship of study habits to correct posture.

Phyllis Norton read the devotions, and Minnie Kolkmeyer presided. Miss Vera Steininger and Mrs. Lucille Downer, advisers, attended.

A committee from the First Baptist Church served as cooks for the luncheon.

REGISTRATION

Monday, January 29

8:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m.

Although the course deals with interests common to all youths, it permits each student to study some local situation of his particular choosing. In general, the course depends upon the demands and interests of those enrolled.

Some of the topics that could be chosen are the following: Necessary Factors for a Feeling of Security, How to Study, Increasing

Human Efficiency, Individual Differences, Effect of Suggestion on Behavior, Improving the Personality, Music and Art as Applied to Morale, Methods of Propaganda,

Choir Appears At Webb City & Carthage

The Joplin Junior College Choir presented assembly programs at Webb City and Carthage high schools on January 9 and 11, respectively.

With the aid of the male ensemble, the Choir, directed by Mr. Oliver Sovereign and accompanied by Miss Martha Jane Dickson, presented the following program:

Bell Will Tell Of World Travels

Mr. Newton Hereford Bell, lecturer and traveler, will be the guest speaker at an assembly to be held in the auditorium at ten o'clock

Wednesday, January 17. He is one of the most widely travelled lecturers in America and to date has delivered over 3,000 lectures on three continents. Mr. Bell, in gathering his fascinating accounts, has travelled over a million miles into the far corners of the earth including some 20,000 miles in Russia before the Iron Curtain days.

According to people who have heard him, "He is a dynamic speaker with an original sense of humor, and his experience in travel, languages, and high adventure all over the world is equalled by few speakers in America today."

Looking Ahead

As this is written, your editor is almost twelve hundred miles away from Joplin, in Orlando, Florida. During the past week, we have crossed several states and watched our Southland flexing her muscles as people talked among themselves of what is ahead for them and for their nation. This reminds us that it would be most appropriate for the first Chart of 1951 to carry an editorial which would attempt in some way to look into the New Year and appraise the possibilities of war or peace, of prosperity or poverty, of life or death.

Here in Orlando, where your editor was once in uniform, the news comes that its mammoth Orlando Air Force Base is reopening the first of the year. Troops are even now arriving in large numbers. It was the same at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, Maxwell Field, Alabama, and many other places we passed. The conversation everywhere hinged on the possibility of military service or war production. No one these days plans further than tomorrow.

How often did we hear someone say, "It looks bad," or "This is our darkest hour!" As we go into 1951, our people are more soberly aware of the critical nature of the times than at any time since the Korean incident began. Up to now, it has been a universal attitude to shrug off an undeclared war as a minor incident that would blow over in no time at all. Now we have been shown that it won't be a short war nor will it be an easy one. It is a right and positive attitude to recognize the overwhelming decisions which face us and to realize that upon them rests the fate of the world. We cannot be too aware of the seriousness of the situation.

But, though we be aware and sober, there are two things we must guard against in the year 1951. Precaution number one is that we take care not to sink into a quagmire of pessimistic despair and a confused resignation. Precaution number two is that we wholeheartedly strive for a united front supported by all our agencies and resources.

Too much sobriety and pessimistic thinking is bad for the individual mind. We can recognize the importance of being alert and aware of dangers without succumbing to the ravages of a brooding mind. A dangerous possibility inherent in this philosophy is that we would resign ourselves to an inevitable defeat at the hands of Russian and Chinese forces. This attitude, by all means, we must not adopt in 1951, or any other year, though the days be grim and bloody.

Most dangerous of all is the disorganization and weakness inherent in a nation made up of people sniping at officials and battling each other. The United States will never win a war with Asia on a basis of manpower only. The victory must be through superior fire power, supply, tactics, and ingenuity. In this superiority, unity is all-important. Petty differences of political opinion must be sublimated in war time. Individual liberties dim in importance when subordinated to the common good in war time. In order to bring about a compact unity, we must, as individuals, subordinate our grievances and differences whenever they tend to destroy the strength of our nation.

Yet we have not considered possibilities of war or peace, prosperity or poverty, of life or death in the year 1951—nor will we attempt to do so here. Of private opinions there are many, but none can be considered factual knowledge. The individual human mind has not the power to encompass all the problems involved nor to make all the decisions necessary to determine the fate of our world in this year to come. One man's opinion is never right, if not tempered by the judgment of others.

So, rather than attempt to predict what 1951 will bring, let every American do these two things in the days to come: Work together in harmony to present a solid front of Americans, and strive not to become pessimistic and sober to the extent of sinking into confusion and despair.

Students Issue Christian Message

The national Episcopal student that unless man builds a society movement has issued the following message that is worth the consideration of students of all denominations:

"We students of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the USA in Convention assembled believe that students today tend to relegate the living Christ to an inferior answer to this current world situation. We believe that Christianity's position in their lives and to action, being the answer to all the problems of mankind, is the great nominal Christianity. We believe love of God for man....

The Typographical Error

"Breathes there a paper with stories so right
That mistakes are always out of sight?"

These lines, parodied from the famous lines called "Patriotism," have been inspired by the consideration of newspaper errors and the reasons for their occurrence. We are not able at this time to list all the problems that enter into the making of a newspaper but for the benefit of those who may think it is always a simple matter to produce a perfect paper we submit without further comment—the following poem.

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly;

You can hunt till you are dizzy, but it will somehow get by;

Till the forms are off the presses, it is strange how still it keeps;

It shrinks down in a corner and it never stirs or peeps—

That typographical error, too small for human eyes

Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.

The boss he stares with horror; then he grabs his head and groans;

The copyreader drops his head upon his hands and moans—

The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be, But that typographical error is the only thing you'll see!

New Year's Resolutions

Remember the saying "New Year's resolutions are made to be broken?" Well, let's watch some of our fellow students to see if they can, or do, live up to their resolutions. Among the most interesting we have heard are the following.

"I, Gene Houk, of sound health in mind and body, do hereby swear to live up to the following New Year's resolution: To be more tolerant of other people's mistakes and less critical of the traits which many people have that I consider foolish. To be more understanding of my fellow men."

"My outstanding New Year's resolution was to improve my school work, to improve my personality, and most important, to do all things to the full limit of my ability." There you have the testimony of Gene Reniker.

Don Davidson resolves "to stay at home next semester and study if Uncle Sam will let me." If he only will!

Ann Barratt is "going to be more considerate of other people." Confidentially, we don't know how she could be.

"I resolve to drive more sensibly than I have been, simply because it suddenly seems dangerous," says Edwin Hill.

Bob Gilmore's decision "to completely stop lying to the girl I go with" makes you stop and wonder which one.

Rosaleta Fullerton's resolution is that she "will try not to pass something on every time I hear something about someone. Just not to be catty."

Marian Hancock is determined "to write more shorthand each night."

The testimony "I want to study harder and get more out of my work, not to lose my temper, to get to bed earlier, and to keep up on my correspondence," seems like a mighty big order for such a little girl—Shermalene Garner.

Bearcats Win 62-46

Southwest Baptist Bearcats of Bolivar, Missouri continued their winning ways Friday, January 5, when they downed the Lions 62-46. The Lions who hit only three field goals in the first entir ehalf really let loose in the last half, but time ran out before they could catch up with the Bearcats from Bolivar.

Merlyn Elder, freshman forward, led the green and gold in their slow starting offense with 13 points. Elder, a former star Carthage High School athlete, was helped greatly by Carl Fain, also a fresh man. Fain, a guard on the 1950 version of the Missouri State High School Basketball Champions, threw ten points through the hoop for JJC.

Southwest Baptist, always a strong basketball opponent, led 16-6 at the half. The Bearcats have won 8 of 9 contests so far this season. They were led by Leonard Thornton, their big center, with 22 points scored on nine field goals and four free throws. Guard Richard McCann also stood out for the Bearcats on offense, netting 14 points.

The coaches of the district have formed a basketball team. They must be trying to disprove the old theory of youth over age.

Several district coaches including the Juco mentors, Hodges and Chase, are on the aggregation. They are playing in the Y-League at the Y. M. C. A. and from all indications seem to be doing very well. Most of these coaches at one time or another in their athletic lives have played basketball, and some of them have starred. I wonder if they are not just trying to show the boys how it's done. Or maybe how to do it. Either way we wish them luck.

JJC Loses Heartbreaker To Jeff City Celebrities To Meet

The luckless JJC basketball and contributed 11 points to Joplin quintet just can't seem to get past lin's total. He hit the hoop for their first opponent this season, five field goals and one free Tuesday night, January 9, on the throw. Carl Fain also played well North Junior High School court offensively and tied Cox for high-scoring honor for the Lions with the Green and Gold lost a heart-breaking, pulse-pounding 55-53 decision to an evenly rated Jefferson City Bear squad in the last nerve racking seconds.

Joplin led the Bears at the first half of play 31-22, and a victory seemed imminent to the throng occupying the bleachers. The Lion attack was sharp and the teamwork outstanding as little Robert Cox led the offensive scoring which netted 15 of 22 shots taken from the field for the JJC squad. However, Jefferson City quickly pulled up to within three points of the Lions when the second half began.

The capital city aggregate kept close to Joplin all through the second half although they never held the lead until the final seconds of the game. Larry Belt and Sonny Pile matched Joplin's scoring thrust and the distance between the two teams was usually held to six points, but many times only two.

With only two minutes of playing time remaining in the game Joplin led 51-45. However, they could not hold on to the ball in their attempt to stall for time, and Jefferson City gradually crept into a 52-all deadlock.

Carl Fain put Joplin back into the lead momentarily with a free throw 53-52 but the lead was short-lived. Pile stole the ball and Duewel, f 2 Jefferson City FG 25 53

LANGUAGE CLUB ENJOYS ACTIVITIES

Helen Latta entertained the Modern Language Club at her home in Royal Heights Monday night, December 18, 1950. The evening was spent in singing and games. Refreshments of Christmas tree cookies, trimmed in true Christmas style served with cakes, highlighted the meeting. Decorations carried out were in tune with the season. Those present were the sponsor, Mrs. Lillian Spangler, Marcella Tharpe, Mary Oldham, Mary Carter, Tom Short, Jacque Townsend, David Wallace, Kenneth Latta, and Robert Eldridge.

Robert Eldridge presented a very colorful program at the last MLC meeting. He told about his experiences of the holidays in Suisun. Everyone enjoyed looking over the several snapshots belonging to Mr. Eldridge while they feasted over their trays up in Blaine Hall, where the meeting was held. Jacque Townsend, president, conducted the business meeting.

Tom Short, who will soon be leaving for the armed forces, will present the program at the January meeting.

PLAYERS STILL WORK

After just presenting three marvellous performances of "The Winslow Boy," you might imagine that the College Players would be resting; but it seems they are always "on the go."

On the night of January 9 Mr. Heater, speech and drama instructor at the college, demonstrated make-up application under the lights in the auditorium. All of the interested players seemed to enjoy it very much. It proved most helpful to everyone who saw it.

And not only do the Junior College Players keep alive on the campus, but they take an interest in community affairs. At the Twelfth Night celebration here in Joplin last Saturday night five students from the drama department of Junior College helped make the pantomime that preceded the celebration at Landreth Park a success. They impersonated the Bible characters.

The players are beginning to talk about their one-act productions. It seems practical for them to present their home in Texas.

Betas To Get Sweat Shirts

Any time now you may happen to look up and be staring a big white sweat shirt bearing the well known words "Beta Beta Beta" in the face, or should we say back. Anyway, the Beta girls have ordered sweat shirts, and, after waiting patiently so long, they plan to declare a "Jean Day" and don their new apparel here at JJC. They thought that perhaps it would be best to warn people because it might prove quite confusing to everyone for so many gorgeous girls to be wearing the same dear old sloppy mops on the same day.

Conference Room Attracts

Joplin Junior College was honored Tuesday, January 9, by having Mr. H. D. Shotwell, Supervisor of Business Education out of Topeka, Kansas, and Mr. E. J. Logsdon, Coordinator of Distributive Education out of Lawrence, Kansas, visit our school with the intention of incorporating some of the ideas in use by the Distributive Education department in a school in Lawrence, Kansas.

The physical equipment utilized in our D. E. class was made by Franklin Technical school. The ideas were furnished by the former Dean, Harlan Bryant.

Mr. Shotwell and Mr. Logsdon visited the eleven o'clock class to observe the methods of teaching.

CLASS HEARS KELLEY

Reverend William Kelley, Jasper Juvenile Court Probation and Parole officer, lectured before both sections of sociology on Wednesday, January 4. He laid special stress upon the part which neglectful and irresponsible parents play in the increase in juvenile court work. The place of the Big Brothers, Inc., in caring for neglected children was explained at some length.

ALUMNI REMEMBER

Rayma Jean Rowland is in Washington State where she is employed.

James and Ralphi Perry are now living in Sedalia where James is assistant county agent. Both James and Ralphi (Morgan) received degrees from the University of Missouri last June.

Mrs. Lucien Flournoy (the former Maxine Edmonson) and Mary two short one-act plays. Try-outs will begin soon. Everyone is urged to come in to try out.

Illidge And Houk Disrupt Staff

The hands of the clock silently glide through the last remaining hours before the printer's deadline for 1951's first Chart. From its perch high on the wall, time finds your editor and his aids feverishly mopping their clouded brows, looking at one another, and mumbling something like this, "My gosh, but we're feeling the pinch of rationing already!" And, what, you ask, is being rationed? Newsprint? Ink? Pencils? Brains? No, none of these. What, then? Just sports writers, friends. Yes, the clamp is on the Chart, as its sports staff is virtually cut in half by the eager sweep of the recruiting sergeant.

Sad, to relate, the Chart loses, with this issue, its talented Sports Editor, Bob Illidge, and one of its star reporters, Gene Houk.

These able journalists have responded to a call for airmen and wisely jumped ahead of the draft board by enlisting in the Air Force. Bob has already left and Gene is momentarily expecting to get on his way.

Let's pause a second or two to look over the "doings" over the past semester of our literary fledglings.

Bob, former Sports Editor, has been first of all, a columnist. His "Sideliner," we think, is right up with the best of them in the ranks of sports columns. In "Lookin' at the Lions," Editor Bob ably acquainted us with our gridiron gallants. Writing with a fervor, he drew vivid pictures of squirming backs and plunging linemen, screaming crowds and thundering whistles. We were there and can return again on wings of his words and phrases. Journalism and sports have been Bob's meat and drink. He is the captain of the sports page that every editor prays for but seldom gets. We hope that someday he may return to the field of his choice.

A capable, dependable and hard-working sports reporter is Gene Houk. From his vantage point in the Lions' line, he managed to see the complete picture clearly enough to write objective accounts of one or two games this year. We don't think anyone has realized just how tough a job that is. But, Gene's best work has been along the feature line, doing such things as a good story on Coach Ed Hodges, a well done article on JJC athletes of past years, and many others. Gene, being an athlete of the first order, naturally feels deeply his devotion to the field of sports. It is this devotion to his work that has made his writings count for so much on the sports page of The Chart. We'll miss him here.

So, to you, Editor Bob, and to you, Journalist Gene, the editorial staff, the faculty sponsors, and each one of us individually say, "You've done a fine job, a job we appreciate more than we can tell you. Here is our thanks, our handshake, and all the best wishes for your good fortune, wherever the coming years take you."

Marlene Lawson vows "to get up earlier in the morning so I will have time to clean my room before coming to school."

Both Don Kepple and George Ashford resolved "not to make any more New Year's resolutions because they are always broken."

STUDENTS EARN AS THEY LEARN

According to information furnished by Calvin Pentecost, distributive education students received an average of $1.06 per hour on their jobs for the first sixteen weeks of the current semester. The thirteen students enrolled in the course worked a total of 4,569 hours and were paid $4,864.70.

Distributive education is a school-work experience program. One of the requirements of the course is that each student work in a retailing job an average of fifteen hours per week for a minimum of fifteen weeks each semester. The average per student for this semester is approximately twenty-two hours. Distributive education might be described as "earn while you learn" according to these figures.

Crossroads To Engravers

After many hours of strain the co-editors, the staff, and the advisers of the Crossroads have deposited the single and group pictures with the engravers. However, there is still much to be done. At present, the big problem confronting the diligent workers is the candid camera page. When you see Fred Heckmaster busily snapping pictures of everyone and everything, you can almost be certain that they are needed for the Crossroads. If anyone is interested in having additional snapshots appear in the yearbook, he should contact someone on the staff.

The co-editors, Mickey Bauer and Eddy Vaughn, are doing a fine job this year. However, the entire staff is striving to please us in 1951. Included on the staff are Jo Ann DeArmond, Geneva Huercamp, Jack Gibson, and Ann Barratt, editorialists; Tommy Tipping and John Edwards, art department; Richard Johnson, Fred Heckmaster, and Robert Henny, photographers; Loretta Quintard, Lucille Booth, Helen Latta, Catherine Tyree, Beverly Buzzard, Betty Davis, and Charleen McClellan, typists. Faculty sponsors are Mr. Harry Gockel, Miss Ada Coffey, Mr. Calvin Pentecost, and Dr. Paul Stevick.

COLLEGIANS RAMBLE FROM COAST TO COAST

From December 15 to January 1 JJC students and faculty were to be found from coast to coast. Some sought their pleasures at seashores; some, in the mountains; some, in the snowy North. Come with your roving reporter for a swing around the nation.

Marcella Tharpe made the Texans quite happy because of her visit to Houston and to San Antonio, where she saw the Alamo. In Little Rock, Arkansas, Kris Kringle found Mary Ann Griffin, enjoying the company of her small cousins and other relatives.

And with envy we point to Joan Wasson, basking in California sunshine and swimming in the surf, while we, here at home, were shivering by the radiator.

Upon journeying to Iowa, whom should we see but Mrs. Harvey Richardson, enjoying her wedding trip. Before her marriage, she was Ethel Overman.

Carroll Fain visited in Fayetteville, where he toured the University and Mt. Sequoia, where the Methodist Youth Camp is located.

In Kansas City, Phyllis Norton, Shirley Roland, and Helen Latta attended a meeting to train Methodist young people for fellowship teams.

Mr. McClymond had a wonderful vacation. He indulged in some deep sea fishing in the warm sunny waters around Florida.

Wading in the Gulf of Mexico was Betty Davis. She also reported that she was acquiring a beautiful sunburn! Sunburns! Fond memories flood our minds as we think of the warm weather we had last summer, and the beautiful burns we acquired ourselves.

By plane to Rochester, Minnesota, went JoAnna Steele for a Christmas vacation. Some people have all the luck!

If you want to know about the Windy City, just ask Pat Beech. She even helped a certain young man make a curtain for a certain theatre in Chicago at an establishment by the name of Theatrical Facilities. Sounds exciting, doesn't it?

Have you ever dreamed of Fairyland? Thought of thousands of bright lights everywhere? Phil Mullane has because of his visit in the Plaza district of Kansas City this Christmas.

Willa Broadway toured the Ozarks during vacation. She visited in Hollister, Missouri.

Ft. Dodge, Iowa, had a white Christmas and Mr. Heater, head of our speech department, was there to enjoy it.

Spoken Word, Military Psychology, Criminology, and Elements in Wisconsin and Michigan Necessary for Happiness. All students wishing to take Applied Psychology should consult Mr. Dryer as soon as possible. The guest at the Sigma Chi's Sweetheart Dance in Tulsa during the Yuletide season.
